

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

Farrans Construction are a Building and Civil Engineering contractor, a SISK company, undertaking work in the United Kingdom and Republic of Ireland.

We recognise that our construction activities may have a significant impact on the environment. Therefore, environmental stewardship is an integral and fundamental part of our business, ensuring we are compliant with the latest legislation, have robust environmental controls in place and promote best practice and continuous improvement to result in a positive lasting legacy for our planet.

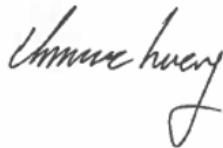

We are committed to improving our environmental performance, as part of our strategic environmental goals, implementing the Best Available Techniques (BAT). We achieve this through our environmental management system, in accordance with the requirements of the International Environmental Management Standard ISO 14001 through which we set, review and perform timetabled environmental objectives and targets.

These targets are based on professional advice and close liaison with relevant authorities and agencies to minimise adverse environmental impact.

Our goal is not only to mitigate negative effects but to bring improvement to the local and wider environment, this is why we operate our business in an environmentally sustainable manner, through;

- A clear process for identifying and minimising environmental risk.
- Performing activities to the highest environmental standard.
- Compliance with all upcoming legislative changes and updates.
- Increasing awareness and understanding of environmental impacts throughout the business.
- Taking a proactive approach to biodiversity net-gain and environmental enhancement projects.
- Engaging and building strong stakeholder relationships during our activities.
- Working with procurement teams to drive environmentally conscious selection criteria.
- Influence our supply chain to minimise the negative impact of their operations on the environment.

Our environmental policy is communicated to our employees, and available to the public on request.
